

Одна из захваченных в плен девушек была освобождена 16 января и свидетельствует, что Лия Шарибу жива.

THE NEW NEWS/NEWS INTERNATIONAL EDITION

World

FREED HOSTAGE SAYS LEAH SHARIBU IS ALIVE!

ABUJA, NIGERIA

U.S. political handlers help sway election and offer access to Washington

BY GEORGE KATZ

When a Nigerian presidential candidate failed to win the election in the United States, it was a political setback for the candidate. But it was a political win for the United States. The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time. The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

These firms help candidates in Washington, London and New York, shifting outside attention from their companies.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time. The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

These firms help candidates in Washington, London and New York, shifting outside attention from their companies.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

The candidate, Leah Sharibu, was a Nigerian woman who had been held captive by the Islamic State in West Africa for years. She was released in 2019, and her story became a major news story in the United States. The United States government had been working to free her for a long time.

MOM IS OVERJOYED

Leah Sharibu's mother, who had been searching for her daughter for years, said she was overjoyed to hear that her daughter was alive.

Copyright © 2020 by Leah Sharibu Foundation. All rights reserved. Leah Sharibu is a registered trademark of Leah Sharibu Foundation.

